BACKGROUND:

According to the Board of Regents Policy 5-1.h (1) Instructional Programs, Naming of Programs, the President may approve changes in the operative and functional names of academic programs and credentials as may become necessary to remain current with the terminology and focus of their fields, given no significant change in program requirements.

The graduate program, Biomedical Sciences: Clinical Research Track (BIOM), has been administered since its inception (2003) by the CIM Department. In the past decade, an expansive growth in the field of clinical and translational research has occurred. New faculty joined the department and the graduate program, and a creative infusion of ideas and updated course materials were implemented to update the Masters of Science program. Changes in both the course curricula and research experiences have been revised and approved by the UHM Graduate Council. The curriculum now includes in-depth learning experiences in the comprehensive aspects of translational research with the integration of an innovative new direction in quantitative health sciences.

The current Biomedical Sciences name lacks adequate program specificity, does not convey the content and learning objectives of the graduate degree and does not represent the educational, training, and career opportunities offered by the newly revised program.

The students will enroll under the same approved course plan that provides added choices for research experiences and educational and degree paths. No adverse changes are anticipated to the educational outcomes or experiences under a new and more specific name.

In summary, a precise identifier for the graduate program is the use of research methods and tools underpinning clinical and translational applications. Therefore, we propose a new and more accurate name for the graduate program as Clinical and Translational Research, consistent with the current status and direction of this scientific field. The new name is also more informative and relevant for graduates as they embark on their careers.

ACTION RECOMMENDED:

We recommend the President approve the proposed change in the name of the Master of Science degree in Biomedical Sciences to the Master of Science degree in Clinical and Translational Research, effective Fall 2018, in the Department of CIM.

Hi April,

Great!

He will also need to shorten the descriptive title to 34 characters and Stuart provided the following options to choose from:

Clinical and Translational Research

Clinical & Translational Research

Clinical & Translational Rsch

Please let me know which of the three above he prefers.

Thanks!
