SUBJECT: PROPOSED NAME CHANGE FROM INSTITUTE FOR TEACHER EDUCATION TO SCHOOL OF TEACHER EDUCATION

SPECIFIC ACTION REQUESTED

It is requested that the President approve a name change of the Institute for Teacher Education to the School of Teacher Education within the College of Education, University of Hawai'i at Mānoa.

RECOMMENDED EFFECTIVE DATE

Fall 2022

ADDITIONAL COST

There are minimal costs dealing with stationery and web changes.

PURPOSE

The purpose of this request is to elevate the prominence of the largest department in the College of Education, the Institute for Teacher Education (Org code: MAITE), by renaming it as the School of Teacher Education.

The faculty of the Institute for Teacher Education (ITE), College of Education, requests to change the name of the Institute to the School of Teacher Education (STE) within the College of Education. Since August 2021, the faculty have engaged in discussions to revise and update the department and programs within. Discussions have occurred regarding curriculum, administrative duties, student support, and clerical support. The faculty felt a name change, along with other needed changes, would be an indicator of their renewal efforts. The unit faculty discussed the pros and cons of creating a name change from ITE; several options were generated but the final decision was to rename to the School of Teacher Education. The STE name is aligned with President Lassner's preference to retain the focus of the unit on teacher education. After much discussion, the majority of the ITE faculty voted in favor of a name change from ITE to STE.

BACKGROUND

For many years, the Institute for Teacher Education was part of a larger Department within the COE, Teacher Education and Curriculum Studies (TECS), comprised of both teacher preparation and other graduate studies. While the intention was to have all faculty teach both undergraduate and graduate courses, including teaching courses in teacher preparation programs and engaging in field supervision, faculty assigned to teach graduate courses were more tangential on field assignments. Eventually, TECS was officially split into the Institute of Teacher Education and the Department of Curriculum Studies (EDCS).

In keeping with the President's request to focus on workforce development, particularly in teacher education, the faculty felt this was a timely opportunity to elevate the status of teacher preparation. The present ITE structure offers initial teacher licensure programs in early childhood, elementary and secondary education at the bachelor's, post baccalaureate and master's levels. There are three faculty program chairs/directors and support staff (APT, clerical, Graduate Assistants) in the unit, including a Partnership and Placement Coordinator. The renaming of a "School" will retain the focus strictly on teacher preparation for PK-12 learners. In tandem with the name change request, the faculty and directors have developed plans to internally revise some existing structures within the unit to designate one director and to reduce duplication of services. With the renaming of the Institute, internal changes will be made to be operationally, organizationally, and functionally more efficient and effective in a number of areas, including but not limited to use of staff time and expertise (by reducing overlap of duties, consolidating tasks, etc.); streamlining the administrative tasks and reporting (reducing the current three program chairs to one Director responsible for the entire School); and allowing faculty to work seamlessly across each of the components of the school (e.g., early childhood, elementary, and secondary, at all levels). The primary director role will further enhance our ability to become more collaborative within and external to the University. The collaborative focus is aligned with UH Mānoa Strategic Initiatives as well as the COE Strategic Plans, which enhances and enriches students, faculty, and staff experiences by embedding collaboration and partnerships as fundamental principles in the delivery of high-quality programs.

IUSTIFICATION

The terms school and department have different meanings at different institutions. Generally speaking, the term school refers to a larger unit within a university. In many universities school is used for units that confer a professional accreditation (e.g. School of Law). In contrast, departments typically are units that refer to specific areas of knowledge that do not end up as a professional qualification (e.g. Department of Philosophy). By definition, school refers to an organization that provides instruction for teaching and learning, typically dedicated to one particular field. The notion of being considered a “school” stems from the goal of providing education and programs to prepare teachers in various subjects for PK-12 learners. Within this context, the term “school” more clearly conveys the unit than the term “institute.” The naming of the School of Teacher Education maintains a clear focus and priority in educating teachers for the State of Hawai‘i.

Pursuant to Board of Regents Policy, RP 5.201 Instructional Programs G. Naming of Programs (Cross reference RP 11.203), programs are given a name at the time they are approved by the board. Thereafter, the president may approve changes in the functional names of academic programs and credentials as may become necessary to remain current with the terminology and focus of their fields and which involve no significant change in the program requirements.

This request initiates a functional name change and involves no significant change in the program requirements. Appendix A provides the list of all teacher preparation programs in ITE that will remain in STE.

ACTION RECOMMENDED

It is recommended that the President approve a name change of the Institute for Teacher Education to the School of Teacher Education within the College of Education, University of Hawai‘i at Mānoa.
